Quincy Police Department 2019 Annual Report

Another year has passed with many changes made. From personnel to awards, I believe 2019 was one of the best years in recent history. As we continue to grow as an agency and as a city, our future is unlimited.

We have stayed with our plan of community involvement, the foundational element to success. This has included being present at numerous events like Farmer Consumer Awareness Day and National Night Out but it didn't stop there. We visited while stopping by businesses, handed out Thanksgiving dinners, took kids shopping for Christmas and spent many hours at our schools. The Quincy Valley is the best place to live and work.

We adopted new Mission and Vision statements and added Values that more aligned with who we are and what we believe. Our Mission statement is Committed to Community. This is the best definition of who we are and how we are expected to act, both inside the walls of the Police Department and outside. Once people know they are valued, they share those values with those they come into contact with, becoming ambassadors for the City of Quincy and the Police Department. This was evident while the police department went through the accreditation process with the Washington Association of Sheriffs and Police Chiefs. As I have said many times, being State Accredited is a big deal but it went smoothly because of the employees at the PD.

As mentioned previously, we are continuing to embrace the 21st Century Policing Model, which was published by the federal government in 2015. We spent the last year focused on Training and Education and Officer Wellness and Safety, two of the 6 pillars. We believe with better training and education; our decisions will be better and more in line with current law enforcement trends. In addition, healthy employees, both in mind and spirit, will provide a balanced overall service.

I expect every employee here at the police department to exemplify the four keys to success: Honesty, Inspiring, Forward-Thinking and Competence. These are my four values that guide me both personally and professionally. These values have been on the board in my office for nearly two years and are there to help me work through the decision I must make.

Last but not least, thank you for your trust, friendship and willingness to help us succeed. As I have said many times, if you have concerns, questions or ideas on the direction of the Police Department, please stop by. Until then, be safe.

Respectfully,

Kieth A Siebert

Chief of Police
